Numb. 5757

The Daily Courant.

Monday, April 4. 1720.

Genoa, March 26.

IT is rumoured, that on the 21st Instant in the Night, Cardinal Alberoni left Sestri, accompanied only by one Person, in Disguise, in order to retire to some Place of Safety. Letters from Naples of the 8th and 15th Instant give an Account, that General Count Mercy having advanced on the 12th of February with the Forces under his Command towards the Spanish Army, they abandoned several Posts, and retired; whereupon General Mercy fixed his Head Quarters at Castel Vetrano; that on the 17th, General Seckendorf was detached with about 1500 Men to attack Xacca, the Garrison of which Place, as we hear by the freshest Letters, have since surrendered Prisoners of War, and the Imperialists have found there great Stores of Provision. The Marquess de Lede having demanded a second Passport for two of his General Officers, the Marquess de St. Vincence, and Sig. Ponte, Count Mercy had granted it, and they were come to Castel Vetrano, with Instructions to renew the Conferences for a Suspension of Arms: Accordingly they had agreed upon a Treaty, by virtue of which Palermo was to be forthwith delivered up to the Imperialists, the Blockade of Syracusa by the Spaniards to be raised, and a Suspension of Arms to be declared for six Weeks. The Marquess de St. Vincence went to carry that Treaty to the Spanish General on the 23th, to have his final Resolution, but the Imperial Trumpeter who had attended him, was sent back with Orders for Sig. Ponte to return, which he did accordingly. The Convoy which was expected from Melazzo, and was commanded by General Wachtendonck, who died at Sea, being arrived at Trapani on the 3d Instant, those Forces marched on the 7th to join General Mercy.

Petersburg, March 15. The Palatine of Masovia, Ambassadour of the King and the Republick of Poland to this Court, arrived on the 4th Instant in the Suburbs of this Place, with a Retinue of 20 Persons. On the 5th the Czar sent Brigadier Zotoff to receive him in his Czarish Majesty's Coach, in order to make his publick Entry which was performed with great Pomp. When the Procession went along the River Neva, the Ambassadour was saluted with the Discharge of 31 Cannon from the Citadel which lies on the other Side of that River. A Company of Soldiers were drawn up in Arms before the House which was fitted up for his Reception, in which Brigadier Zotoff entertained the Ambassadour and his Retinue at the Czar's Expence during three Days. On the 7th the Ambassadour was conducted to Court to the Audience of his Czarish Majesty, to whom he made a Speech, in which after having declared the inviolable Friendship the King and the Republick have all along observed towards his Czarish Majesty, and their Steadiness in adhering to the mutual Alliances, he desired the Czar that he would likewise on his Part maintain those Ties of good Understanding, and do Justice to his Allies by performing what is stipulated in their mutual Treaties. The Ambassadour afterwards delivered two Letters, one written by the King, and the other in the Name of the Republick, both which the Czar took himself. Count Golofkin the Great Chancellour after a short Compliment, presented the Ambassadour and the Gentlemen of his Retinue to kiss the Czar's Hand. Baron Schafiroff the Vice-Chancellour acquainted the Ambassadour, that the Czar would give Orders to his Ministers to confer with him about his Commission, and so the Ambassadour was reconducted to his House with the same Ceremonies as he went to Court. On the 10th the Czar set out for Olonitz, whither the Czarina followed on the 12th. That Day the Court went into Mourning for the late Empress Mother: M. Jagousinsky, Gentleman of the Czar's Bed-Chamber, is appointed Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Vienna, whither he set out this Day.
